

“Defense Acquisitions: One Year after Reform”

On Wednesday, May 19, 2010, the Subcommittee on National Security and Foreign Affairs held a hearing entitled “Defense Acquisitions: One Year after Reform.”

The hearing examined the conclusions and recommendations made in the Government Accountability Office’s (GAO’s) March 2010 Assessment of Selected Weapon Programs, with a focus on how well the Department of Defense (DOD) is planning and executing its weapons acquisition programs.

The witnesses discussed what progress has been made towards implementing reforms and best practices in the acquisition process since GAO’s 2008 report showed cost overruns and scheduling delays.

That report was examined in an April 2008 Subcommittee hearing entitled, “Oversight of Defense Department Acquisitions.”

Information about that hearing can be viewed here

. Witnesses also discussed the implementation and impact of the Weapons System Acquisition Reform Act of 2009, the F-35 alternate engine, and the increasing reliance on nongovernmental workers in weapon program offices
