

Today Chairman Waxman released two new analyses -- one by GAO and one by the majority staff -- that examine the impact of the Medicaid citizenship documentation requirements that went into effect in 2006. The analyses show that the requirements have caused eligible U.S. citizens to lose Medicaid coverage and have not achieved the goal of saving taxpayers money.

Documents and Links

- Summary of GAO and Staff Findings
- GAO Report: Citizenship Documentation Requirement